Who Should Apply?

First Five Nebraska is a statewide early childhood policy and communications organization that is offering two paid internships per semester for graduate students from multiple academic domains (i.e. law, research/data, communications, public administration, early childhood, social work, etc.). The academic domain is not as critical a qualifier as is a true interest in public policy, public service, or government relations. It is a unique opportunity to apply your knowledge from the classroom in a public policy environment.
